GENERAL SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

There was a great surprise in the pedes trian contest at the Central Rink yesterday. Noremac suddenly collapsed early in the morning and Hegelman went to the front. A abort time before noon the record was: Hegelman, 403, and Noremac, 388. This caused the wildest excitement among the people who watched the race during the 12 hours of daylight. Hegelman was going like a streak of lightning. Suddenly Noremae became sick and left the track. At this unexpected turn of affairs there was the wildest consternation. Charges of foul play and swindling were bandled round freely. Groups of spectators were arguing themselves black in the face as Herelman took the lead and increased it mile after mile in Noremac's absence. Interested people went to Noremac's cot and found that he was a very sick man. His friends had given up all hope of victory. Noremac, however, regained his vigor and reappeared. He was presented with several $10 bills, and the little fellow gamely set to work to make up lost time.

Hegelman was looking weary and Connors, who had gone into second place, was apparently distressed. Noremac plodded away, and at times made remarkable spurts. He vomited once or twice, but that only seemed to preserve the manufacture of the preserve of the control of the c invigorate him. As evening approached he began to weary Hegelman, and the latter left the track thoroughly exhausted. Noremac continued and didn't stop until he was about five miles ahead of Hegelman. THERE WERE LOUD CHEERS.

This performance caused the loudest and the most enthusiastic cheers. Noremac is really a most enthusiastic cheers. Noremac is really a favorite, but probably Hegelman is a stronger one. The latter has surprised all of his friends and backers, and even himself, by staying so long. Only pluck has done it, and it again seems as if the little Scotchman will down two plucky fellows like Connors and Hegelman.

Despite the fact of the law and all injunctions by Manager Davis there is betting going on at a lively rate, just as there would at a church cake walk. One well known sport bet $50 to $25 on the field against Noremac last evening when Hegelman was in front. He offered to bet $50 at the same rate of odds, but there were no takers. Hegelman went to bed, offered to bet $500 at the same rate of odds, but there were no takers. Hegelman went to bed, however, and there was a great change in the appearance of things. Evens were offered on Noremac against the field with no takers. Pete Golden's friends were on hand and wanted to bet $400 to $600 that he would cover $75 miles. There were no takers except one man who bet $100 to $75 that Golden would not get over the limit. Golden, about 9 o'clock, said that he was feeling well and thought he was sure to cover $75.

limit. Golden, about 9 o'clock, said that he was feeling well and thought he was sure to cover 476.

Nolan was completely knocked out. His left foot was in a horrible shape. It was swollen terribly, and his sakle was all disjointed. He was located at the track side, a thorough cripple, and cheering every man who made a good effort. Messier reappeared and spurned the notion that he had been drugged. He complained of a suck stomach, but he attributed it to the absence of the proper food. He was going well after supper, but with little hope of getting over the mark. Cartwright displayed some fast running, although he has not yet proven that he is a game man. Anybody who legitimately breaks down cannot very well come and run a mile at a three-minute or six-minute gait. Doubtless if Cartwright had the pluck of Pete Golden, he could earn the $1,000 or $1,500 of this race easily. The winner will at least get about $1,500 if the attendance is as it ought to be. Nobody knows who will be first, and most assuredly there will be a great struggle lto-day. A good prize will probably teach such as Cartwright that $1,000 or $1,500 here is just as valuable as a $400 or $500 for fourth or 61th ninee at Madison Sourse. just as valuable as a $400 or $500 for fourth or fifth place at Madison Square.

the track. Golden, who had taken precedence as far as Adams was concerned, was going quite lively. Adams came out and challenged Golden, but the latter caused Adams to Golden, but the latter caused Adams to take a rest Golden is really a game man, and he had a friend or two who yelled out; "Here's a tenner. Go in and finish it." Golden really is doing well, and it is just as exciting to find out whether or not he will cover 475 miles as whether Connors or Hegelman will defeat Noremac. Peter Golden wanted to-night to sleep six hours, and those who have bet that he will not cover 475 mile is really the most remarkable on the track. If he was a talkative man he might tell about his sufferings. However, he is a proof of human endurance under difficulties. He is likely now to cover 475 miles. Following was the score at 2 o'clock this morning:

His Team Wins Another Ball From the All-Americas in a Pretty Game. INPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

PHILADELPHIA, April 12 — The touring basecallists, headed by their clever President, Mr. A. G. Spalding, of the Chicago club, and President Reach and John I. Rogers, of the Philadelphia club, logether with a number of basecallists, headed by their clever President, Mr. A. G. Spalding, of the Chicago club, and President Reach and John I. Bogers, of the Philadelphia club, together with a number of the Philadelphia club, and a number of local baseball writers, called on Mayor Fitler at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and His Honor formally welcomed the visitors in a brief but appropriate speech. The Mayor said he believed the national game to be the purest, noblest and most healthful of outdoor sports, and that he is proud to state that his grandshildren, from the baby boy up to the oldest boy, are not only admirers of the game, but each of them has his ball and bat. He said he was happy to meet such a fine-looking lot of men, and though they were to remain in the city only a few hours longer, he wanted them to make Philadelphia their home during that brief period.

The address of welcome was heartily applauded, and President Spalding, in his happy and interesting manner, responded. He said he and his fellow-members of the touring party were proud to think they had the homor of accepting the hospitality of the father city of baseball, and while making the tour around the world they were proud to represent this great and prosperous country, the declaration of independence of which was constructed and signed within a few yards of where they at that moment stood. Mr. Spalding, again thanked the Mayor for his kind words, and invited His Honor to witness the game, which was accepting the hospitality of the father city of baseball, and while making the tour around the Orphan's Court; Judge Wilson, Colonel McCiure and wife, Mrs. A. J. Reach, Mrs. John I. Rogers, and a grand galaxy of Philadelphia's prettiest daughters beautifully attired. Before the game and at the close of each inning the Wecoco Band, of 25 peoces, rendered some choice selections, which assisted materially in making the occasion the grand success it proved to be.

The game was close and exciting from a scientific standpoint, but the enthusiasm which characterizes local con

STANLEY'S JUMP.

A New York Young Man Surprises Cincinnati People.

CINCINNATI, April 12.-Meredith Stanley, of this city, a well-known athlete and bridge jumper, who has challenged Brodie, of New York, yesterday made the most remarkable leap on record. It was from the famous high bridge on the Cincinnati Southern road over the Kentucky river. The height is 285 feet. He the Kentucky river. The height is 285 feet. He selected a place where the water was 12 feet deep, and attired in silk tights and slippers leaped into the air and doubling up his body like a ball fell to the water, and a moment later bounced to the surface, where he was quickly seized by assistants in boat.

He coughed blood a little while, but soon recovered and took the train for Cincinnati. He says the feat is done by knowing how and by perfect self-confidence. He escaped without breaking the skin, and to-day says he feels as well as ever. This bridge is the highest in the world except one.

McMillan Challenges Duffy. BALTIMORE, April 12.-Billy McMillan, of Washington, arrived here to-day with his backer, Billy Burnett, and posted $100 with William E. Harding and issued a challenge to fight Paddy Duffy, of Boston, who has just re-turned from California, for $500 or $1,000 aside, at 142 pounds, or at catch weights, with small gloves, the battle to be decided within 100 miles of New York City, eight weeks from the time of signing articles.

LIFE WORTH LIVING.

The Subject of Rev. W. R. Mackay's Lecture at St. Peter's Last Night.

"Life Worth Living" was the subject of a lecture by the Rev. W. R. Mackay, at St. Peter's Episcopal Church last night, in which he dealt very severely with the pessimist, as an introduction. Then he explained how a man's life depends greatly upon his physical condition. He said that pessimists were apt to take a rain-and-mud view of everything; that they produced hopelessness and despair, the source of sui-to the warden about things I thought of. I thought, for instance, the food was all right in the block; also in the lemale ward.

Mr. Christy—You speak of food. What has been the character of your meals at the prison since your visiting began?

Mra. Maler—Very simple; because I requested it, and because it was while I was at work in the hospital.

it, and because it was while I was as worth the hospital.

Mr. Christy-Were you given to understand after the Maharneke trial that your visits to the penitentiary would be the same as a charge upon the State?

Mrs. Maier-Yes, sir. I was told at the time the rules were shown me that I could not go around the prison without a guard, and that a quard would cost the State something like $2 to $4.

Sanator Reshurp-Who told you that?

to $4.

Senator Reyburn—Who told you that?

Mrs. Maler—The warden himself. He was simply talking to me, though.

Senator Reyburn—Did the State Beard of Charities never give you instructions?

Mrs. Maler—Oh, yes; they told me I should have an escort.

have an escort.
Senator McAleer—In the seven years previous to this investigation, that you have been visiting the prison, did you ever have a guard as an Mrs. Maler—No, sir, I never had.

Senator Reyburn's Surprise. The lady then detailed her system of visits to male and female prisoners in the interests of humanity. She considered it perfectly safe to go among the male prisoners. She never found them other in word, thought or deed what the Senators would be in their conduct to a lady. Therefore a guard as an escort was unneces

Questioned more closely by Senator Watres about Maharneke receiving moneys from the Prison Board, Mrs. Mair replied that she had Prison Board, Mrs. Mair replied that she had heard for two or three years the common talk in the prison that Maharneke received small sums of money. She knew nothing of her knowledge about it. But so much talk did she hear that she finally made it her business togo to the place of business of one of the Board of Inspectors and suggest to him that there were things in the prison hospital which perhaps should be investigated. This inspector gave her so little encouragement to proceed that she did not go into details for him. After that she simply referred to the matter in a conversation with Mr. Sawyer, of the State Board of Charities. She once sent money through the chaplain to a prisoner, supposing, of course, it would reach the person for whom it was intended.

Senator Reyburn—Did you tell the State Board of Charities this?
Mrs. Mair—Yes, sir.
Senator Reyburn—Did they not act?
Mrs. Mair—No, sir.
Senator Reyburn—Then all I have got to say is they are as bad as anyone in this case.
Senator Allen—Did the Chapiain ever tell you what became of this money you sent?
Mrs. Mair—No, sir. The Maharneke Favors.

Senator Allen—Why did prisoners give Ma-harneke these little sums of money?

Mrs. Mair.—To secure favors.
Senator Allen—Better diet, you mean?
Senator Reyburn (interrupting)—She means by favors to get them into the hospital.

Mrs. Mair.—I rather think "favors" were little delicacies and attentions sick men would Senator Allen-Why did you send money, senator Allen—way the you send money, knowing it would go to Maharneke, rather than report such evil to the board?

Mrs. Mair—I only did it in this one case, because I wanted to help this man. I did not believe the board would believe the charges if I would make them against Maharneke; that they would cut off my visits, and that it would not do any good.

do any good. Senator Reyburn-Whose money was it you Senator Reyburn—Whose money was it you sent?

Mrs. Mair—My own: I have sent hundreds of dollars to prisoners out of my own pocket. Questioned as to why she objected to the company of a guard, Mrs. Mair said a guard sat so close to her when she talked to prisoners, and watched her so close that it was embarrassing to her work. She only had one great humane purpose in the prison.

Somebody tried to get Mrs. Mair to give the name of the prisoner whom the guard stopped his talking to her. She declined emphatically to give the name.

Warden Wright Expinion. Warden Wright cross-examined Mrs. Mair, reading the book of rules she referred to. He then stated that once it had taken the whole time of a guard for weeks eccorting her through the shops, and that at her own sugges-tion she was allowed to meet prisoners in the rotunda. Recently, when he told her that a guard must accompany her and that this would be an expense to the State, she had said that it was to be regretted that she was to be an ex-pense to the State, and that he had said that was of no consequence.

Mrs. Mair may have made such a remark.

Warden Wright told Senator Reyburn that

Warden Wright told Senator Beyburn that Mrs. Mair's visits to the prison were now on the same basis as that of other people. He had made it necessary for a guard to go with Mrs. Mair more as a protection to the lady. In the case of the man whom the guard recently stopped from talking to Mrs. Mair the captain said he was mentally unsound, and was apt to become violent at any time. It was not saie, he thought, for a lady to go to this man alone.

Mrs. Mair—This man's conversation was sensible and the most circumspect. He had just began to relate some personal grievance when Officer Greaves said: "There, now, that's enough of that." Then Greaves sent to Deputy Warden McKean, and he said the man could make his complaints to a prison inspector.

Mrs. Mair's Rebuke.

Mrs. Mair's Rebuke. In closing her testimony, Mrs. Mair was rather taken back by a question out of the usual line. "Do you think it in your instructions from the State Board of Charities to exhort and deliver moral lectures to the prisoners without infringing on the duties of the chaplain, who is paid for it? asked Senator McAleer.

Mrs. Mair's face flushed, but she remained cool enough to compel the Senator to repeat his cold question, "just so the other ladies could hear it," she said. After he had done this, Mrs. Mair said impressively that she, as a Christian woman, considered it her duty and privilege, that after having conscientiously looked after the temperal wants of prisoners to mention to them the better life beyond.

Mrs. Dr. Swift and Mrs. Holden, also visiting members of the Board of Charities, were placed on the witness stand. They simply stated that all Mrs. Mair testified to was correct. They criticised the management for curstated that all Mrs. Mair testified to was correct. They criticised the management for curtailing freedom of lady visitors.

Mr. Christy was then asked if he could tell anything about the prison management. He arphed in the negative. Then he was asked for names of those who could tell something.
He said he would not suggest names, for at present two men who could give information were not within the jurisdiction of the State.

Senator Handy Smith—Are they in Heaven?

veloped that he knew nothing additional to what was on record of the other investigation, and he was excused from repeating it.

Bubsequently Warden Wright was asked if Maharneke had been discharged.

"Yes, he was discharged for saying 'damp!" replied Mr. Wright. He explained that there were four charges against Maharneke. Two were dismissed; one was not considered proven; the fourth was proven. That was that he had been guilty of saying "O, damn!"

President George A. Kelly, of the Board of inspectors, supplemented this with the statement that Maharneke had really been discharged because the board believed him of too excitable a nature to occupy the position he did.

excitable a hashed we describe the did.

Senator Gobin asked Mr. Christy if he knew of anything else beside the Maharneke charges the prisoners would have testified to if they would have had the opportunity? McPhilinmy Not Punished.

Mr. Christy-No, sir. I don't know, because I nor nobody else could get near enough to the prisoners to find out. The investigation by the board a month ago was a farce.

Senator Mylin-Warden, has McPhillamy, the prisoner who brought the charges, been placed in the dungeon or punished in any way since the investigation?

The Warden-No, sir. He has only since received the same punishment that 300 other prisoners receive, namely, to be kept in their cells without work.

Mr. Christy-But was he not kept entirely apart from other prisoners, under the strictest guard, all the time the investigation of his charges was being made?

The Warden-Not at all, sir. Every freedom possible was allowed him. The hall boy was permitted to carry all the notes McPhillamy gave him to other prisoners. The truth is the rules were suspended during the investigation to allow McPhillamy every possible attention as a prisoner. board a month ago was a farce.

to allow mut and a same as a prisoner. Senator Gobin—I infer from what you are hinting at, Mr. Christy, that the investigation by the board was not a fair one. Do you mean that the board tried to shield Maharnke?

An Exciting Scene.

Mr. Christy—That is exactly what I say now All the time that investigation went on this august board of inspectors sat around a table. Warden Wright sat back of Prefident Kelly. When a prisoner testified the Warden leaned forward, looked the prisoner square in the eye, didn't you? The Warden-Yes, sir, I did.

Senator Gobin-Well, what was wrong with that.

Mr. Christy—Intimidation! That was what it was. And the prisoners so understood it. When a prisoner was sent for to testify President Kelley would look at him and say: "No. 3737, McPhillamy has sent for you, Do you want to testify?" Then President Kelly and Warden Wright would both look him in the eye, as much as to say, "You may testify if you want, but prohibition don't prohibit down here, and we will attend to your commutation later?"

President Kelly (excited)—Senators, I emphatically protest against this. I have a standing and reputation in this community that will not permit such imputations to be made on my character. I am the peer of this man [glaring at Christy's Arraignment Continues.

At Christy's Arraignment Continues.

Christy's Arraignment Continues.

Mr. Christy said he only said what was true.

During the investigation McPhiliamy was kept under the closest surveillance by the board, but Maharneke was treated like a lord, and allowed to fatten at the same dining tables with the members of the board.

Senator Handy Smith—What is McPhiliamy in pricent for?

in prison for? The Warden-Robbing safes in Lawrence county.

Senator Smith—Is that all? [Laughter.]

Senator Gobin—The wardon had a perfect right to look at the prisoners while they testified. Would you have him turn his back on fied. Would you have him turn his back on them?

Mr. Christy—No, but the board should have assumed the whole duties. Instead of telling prisoners that McPhiliamy sent for them, they should have said, "The board sends for you and you must testify." Then they would not have been airaid to tell the truth.

Warden Wright added that since the State Board of Charities was instituted it never had made a complaint against the institution, and two of its members were present at the recent investigation.

Hints of New Charge Mr. Christy further said John Reilly, a pris Mr. Christy further said John Reilly, a priscuer, had wanted to make other charges beside the Maharneke affair, but that the board had cut him off. Warden Wright said that this was true, but that the board had told him he should be given opportunity again to make the complaint. Official Stenographer E. J. Dounelly corroborated the Warden, but Mr., Christy said they were both wrong.

Mr. Reed, the jeweler, a member of the board, stated that he was the man whom Mrs. Mair had called upon at his place of business once. He denied that he was cool in his treatment to her, and said that she simply said "things were not smooth at the prison." That was all she said.

A son of Warden Wright was called and asked by Senator Allen if he was a member of the firm of Butz & Co., builders. He replied that he was not. He said that he was only an employe of the firm.

This is one of the firms that is said to have done some work for the penitentiary.

The committee then went into executive session. It decided to continue the investigation at the penitentiary this morning. Senator Robbins said that he had falked with a few prisoners that he had befriended, and they told him if the committee could prevent their time from being cut off they would be willing to testify, but the committee can give them no assurance.

RARE SCIENTIFIC EVENT.

Microscopists Give a Fine Exhibition of Their Work and What They Work on-Their Annual Soiree.

The eighth annual exhibition of the Iron City Microscopical Society was given in the Old City Hall last evening. The lovers of hidden mysteries, and there was a good crowd of them present, had an excellent op-portunity to feast their souls. As these rare scientific events occur only once a year, plenty of time was given the visitors to examine the specimens.

About 50 microscopes were mounted on little desks, and the audience passed around at lessure, and looked through the magnifying lenses. The strongest microscope there was capable of magnifying 2,500 times, but one of the microscopiets explained that this depends on what kind of a lens is put in. On such occasions as last evening. the strongest lenses are not used. The vibra-tions caused by people walking on the floor would blur the image.

The famous collection of bugs, beetles and butterfiles gathered by Dr. Holland in all parts of the world was one of the chief attractions and greatly admired. Another feature was the production of pictures of microscopic specimens on a canvas through the aid of a calcium light. Dr. Riggs acted as instructor, and pointed out certain things to be noticed in each picture. A transverse section of the hydra was exhibited under one of the microscopes. Diatoms, human corpuscies, parts of the bodies of animals, trichina, blood of anakes, feathers of birds, eyes of flies, starch and other familiar objects were magnified.

Prof. Brashear exhibited a number of astronomical instruments.

THE STORM'S DAMAGES.

Traffic is Delayed and Several Dwelling Houses Are Flooded. The siphon at the Washington street power house of the Fifth avenue cable line gave out last evening during the storm, and, becoming choked up, ceased to operate, the result being that the vault where the change of cables is made became filled with water. The cables were stopped and a force of men were put to work to bail out the water. A stop of half an hour occurred before the water was reduced enough to allow the cables to be worked. Men were kept at work with buckets all night.

Several small landslides occurred on the Panhandle Railroad between the Smithfield street and Point bridges. They were not large slides, although the trains were stopped for an hour and a half. There was no serious damage reported, but some of the house along the hillside on Brownsville avenues were flooded with water.

A DESPERATE MAN.

A Young Alleghenian Tries to Jump Fron a Window to Escape Arrest.

John Hohman is well known in Alle gheny, and is a frequent guest of Superinendent Warner of the Allegheny County Workhouse. He left the institution yester day and went to his mother's house at No. East street, Allegheny, and proceeded to put everybody out of the house. He found his mother in a room in the third story and was about to eject her when Officer Alexander put in an appearance.

Young Hohman tried to escape by jumping out of the window, which meant sure death. The officer was too quick for him and caught him just in time to save his life. A desperate battle ensued during which the officer succeeded in drawing his prisoner through the window and took him down by way of the stairs. The young man is in the lockup and will likely return to his former quarters in the workhouse to-day.

The Master Horseshoers' Association Hol Their Annual Mooting.

The Master Horseshoers' Association Pittsburg and Allegheny held their annual meeting last night. Reports of a most encouraging nature were submitted. Three new members-Gil Hunter, John McCune, of Robinson & McCune, and William W. of Robinson & McCune, and William W. Jarvis—were initiated. Nearly all the master horseshoers of the two cities are now in the organization, and with the aid of the Journeymen's Union, it is expected to have the others in a short time.

Officers to serve for the ensuing year were nominated last night. The election will be held at the next meeting two weeks hence.

CONSPIRACY TO MURDER

Is Preferred by a Woman Who Thinks Her Sons Are in Danger. A very serious charge was preferred against Patrick Conley and Patrick Mc-Curren yesterday before Alderman Porter. In the afternoon a middle-aged lady named Mrs. Bessie Norman entered the alderman's office and entered a charge of conspiracy to murder against the two defendants. The prosecutrix lives on the Morningside road, Nineteenth ward, and has two sons, William and Joseph, who are 17 and 18 years of age respectively.

The sons work in Miller's brickyards, and seem, by a cause not yet brought out, to have incurred the hatred of Patrick Conhave incurred the hatred of Patrick Conley and Patrick McCurren, two young men, each of whom is about as old as the two Norman boys. A few days since, Mrs.
Norman alleges, the defendants confederated and conspired to take the lives of her sons while they were on their way to work.
After murdering the two sons of Mrs. Norman, it is said, they proposed throwing the bodies in the Allegheny river.

Mrs. Norman preferred the charge on information received and says she can sub-formation received, and says she can sub-stantiate every statement made and show in what manner the defendants intended to kill

Officers Daly and Sheppard made the ar-rest of the defendants, who gave bail in the sum of $1,000 each for hearing Monday.

Merit is Our Keynote.

There can be no compromise between valuable clothing and unreliable. The mean must go to the wall.

It may run the gauntlet, and be bought by an unwary customer. The wear will show him what sort it is. All its worth hinges on that. He'll be sorry too late. With us quality is the essential. We ask-"Cloth, are you all-wool? or part cotton? Will you wear evenly? Will your color hold?" When we are sure on these points, we manufacture it into clothing. Not till then. Do you see how clear our ground is in saying our goods are reliable? A storekeeper who buys from a wholesaler could hardly know these things.
